Visiting an Indonesian home

Whenever you visit a friend at home in Indonesia, you will almost always be offered a snack and a drink. It is considered polite to accept an invitation to eat if the family insists on bringing out snacks and a drink. Refusing the invitation is almost like saying the food or drinks aren't good enough.

When visiting an Indonesian family the host offers you a drink and a snack. Is it polite to refuse? ______________