Real Training for Real Jobs

AMBULANCE VICTORIA

FINALIST - 2017 LARGE EMPLOYER OF THE YEAR

Ambulance Victoria first response in training

If you enrol in the Ambulance Victoria (AV) Certificate II in Medical Service First Response to become one of the service's 980 service's volunteer first responders delivering pre-hospital medical care across Victoria, then chances are you might just keep going – with more training.

As a Registered Training Organisation (RTO), AV is focused on building accessible education and training pathways. AV has designed a unique training pathway model that awards credits if transitioning between their training programs, with each qualification designed to build on the previous qualification.

For example, you can transfer nine units from the Certificate II in Medical Service First Response into the Certificate III in Basic Health Care, leaving only 5 or 6 units to complete the qualification. Transferring units also applies when moving from the Certificate III to the Certificate IV. On completion of the Certificate IV there are only 3 to 4 units to complete to obtain a Diploma of Paramedical Science. This transferring of units provides an incentive to keep moving along the training pathway.

It seems no one stands still in his or her education and training pathways at AV.

Belinda Knight, from Orbost, is enjoying her role as a volunteer Ambulance Community Officer with AV.

"I enjoy offering a service to my community and furthering my training. I have made the most of the opportunities that Ambulance Victoria have offered by completing my Certificate III and IV and hope to complete the Diploma of Paramedical Science."

"We are continually wanting to improve our pathways for First Responders to enhance their opportunities to study paramedicine and becoming a finalist in the Awards is recognition that our unique training pathways are amongst the best in Victoria." Dave Garner Manager Community and Responder Programs
