Preface

Comprehensive data about the provision of Languages education in Victorian government schools has been collected centrally and published since 1991 by the Victorian Department of Education and Training (DET). This report provides an analysis of the provision of Languages education in 2016 in Victorian government schools, including the Victorian School of Languages (VSL). It also includes data about the provision of Languages education in accredited community languages schools funded by DET in 2016. The report does not include data about the provision of Languages education in non-government schools.

All Victorian schools are required by legislation and as a condition of their registration with the Victorian Registration and Qualifications Authority to provide instruction in the eight learning areas, including Languages.

In 2016, 22 languages were taught in mainstream government primary and secondary schools, with Italian, Chinese (Mandarin), Japanese, Indonesian, French, German, Spanish and Auslan the most-studied languages across primary and secondary schools. In addition, the Victorian School of Languages provided out-of-school-hours and distance education programs in 49 languages to student who could no access the language of the choice in their mainstream school.

In 2016, 1,319 (91.9 percent) of government primary and secondary schools offered Languages programs to a total of 397,845 students across primary and secondary schools, including the Victorian School of Languages. This means that 65.8 percent of the total primary and secondary school cohort of students were learning a language in 2016.

In addition, accredited community language schools (CLS) provided out-of-school-hours programs in 42 languages to a total of 35,343 students. Students who attended CLS may also have studied a language at a government or non-government mainstream school.

In total, students in Victoria studied 67 languages through government schools, the VSL and CLS in 2016. Appendix 1 contains a list of the 67 languages by education provider.

For the first time, the 2016 report includes a long-term 20-year (1996-2017) overview of trends in the provision of languages education in government schools (Figure 1.6). This table shows the trends in the number of primary and secondary schools providing a languages program. Figure 1.7 shows the trends in the number of primary and secondary students learning a language from 1996 -2016.

1. Overview of Languages Education in 2016

The following analysis reviews Languages education in Victorian government primary and secondary schools over the last seven years. It provides an overview of the current state of Languages and highlights the differing patterns in the study of Languages at the primary and secondary levels.

Victorian Government Primary and Secondary Schools

This report considers data collected in August 2016, from 1,436 government schools in Victoria. Across these schools, 1,197 offered primary-level schooling and 316 schools offered secondary-level schooling. English language schools and special schools are not included in this figure, nor are they considered in this report.

It should be noted that the number of government schools changes slightly each year. For example, data from 1,454 schools was considered in the 2012 report, while this number decreased to 1,443 in 2013 and to 1,436 schools in 2016. Therefore, percentages, as well as numerical data, are provided for clarity in some tables and figures (e.g. Figure 1.2).

Languages Programs in Victorian Government Schools

In 2016, 1,319 (91.9 percent) of 1,436 government schools in Victoria offered Languages programs. A total of 378,085 students (65.8 percent of all students) were enrolled in these programs. Of these, 2,378 students were enrolled in taster programs at the secondary level where they studied two languages. There were also 17,382 enrolments at the Victorian School of Languages (VSL), bringing the total number of enrolments in Languages programs in 2016 to 397,845 (Table 1.1).

Twenty-two languages were taught in mainstream government schools in 2016, while 49 languages were studied through the VSL. Table 1.1 provides a summary of enrolments in Victorian government primary and secondary schools, as well as all enrolments at the VSL (including through distance education), for 2016. Note that at the secondary level, students studying more than one language through taster programs are counted for each language in which they are enrolled. Hence, Table 1.1 represents student enrolment figures, not the number of students studying a language.

Note that the second column counts the number of schools teaching each language, while the other columns count program numbers. If an F-9 or F-12 school offers a Languages program at both primary and secondary levels, it is counted in both the Primary level and Secondary level programs column. Hence, the total in the Number of schools column is sometimes less than the Total programs column.

Long-term overview for Languages provision

The Department has collected and published data on the provision of Languages education in Victorian government schools since 1991. This data enables the Department to monitor enrolment trends by language, year level and language teaching time

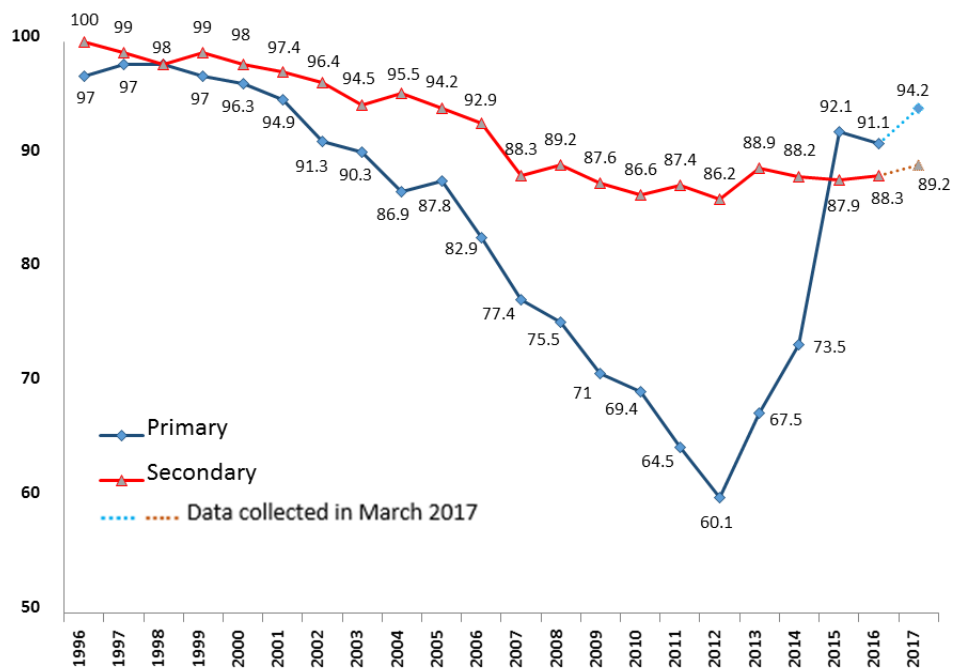

Figure 1.6 shows the trend in the number of government schools providing a languages program over the twenty two-year period 1996 to 2017. (The 2017 data was collected via the Languages Questionnaire, which is administered annually in March to schools identified in the previous year's August school census as not providing a language program.) Figure 1.6 shows that the decline in the number of schools providing a languages program, particularly at the primary level has been reversed over the last five years, with 94.2 percent of primary schools providing a languages program in March 2017. However, despite the significant increase in the number of primary schools providing a languages program, there remain ongoing challenges in ensuring that all Foundation to Year 10 students have access to quality languages programs. This includes ensuring the sustainability of languages programs particularly in small rural schools, strengthening the provision of primary to secondary school language pathways and increasing the time on task.

Figure 1.7 shows student enrolments in languages programs have also significantly increased at the primary level over the last five years. Student enrolments at the secondary level have remained stable over the same period.

In 2016, 17.8 percent of students who graduated from a government secondary school had completed a VCE Unit 4 Language study, an increase of 0.4 percent on the previous year. (Table 4.5).

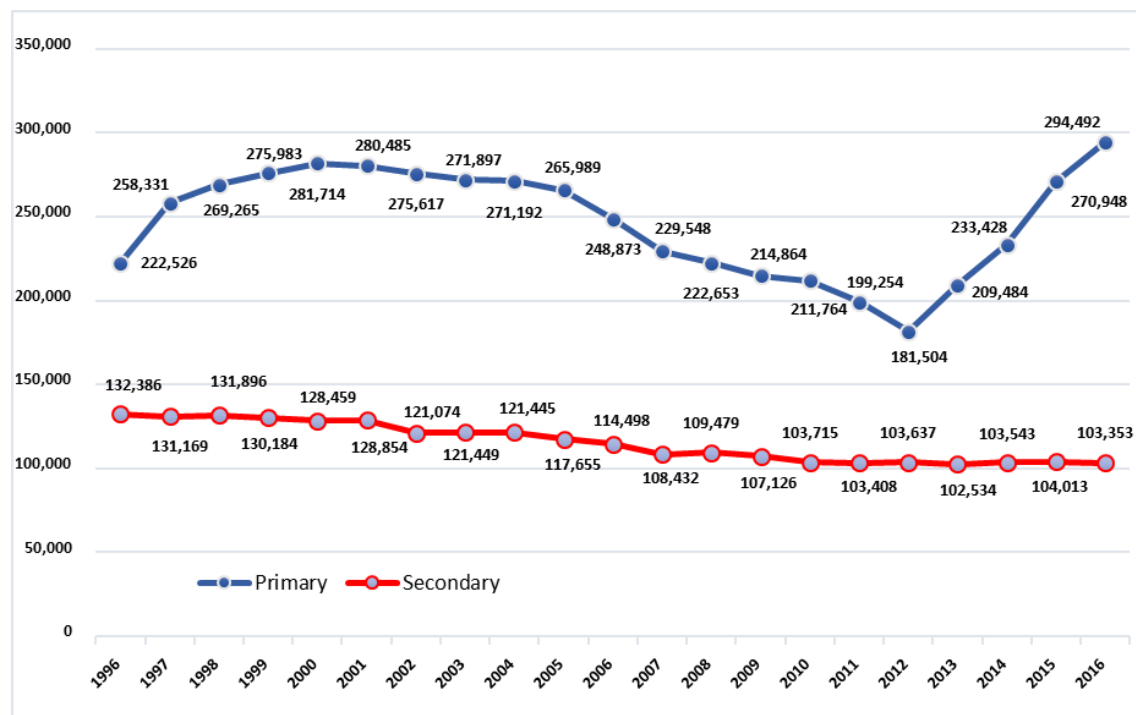

This commitment to Languages education at the senior secondary level was demonstrated across all schools in Victoria, with 20.8 percent of students across government, Catholic and independent schools graduating from Year 12 with a Language study in 2016. This includes the study of a language through a mainstream school, the VSL, a CLS, as well as students who completed their schooling through the International Baccalaureate (IB) program in a Victorian school. (Data source: DET, VCAA and IB Australasia).

Language Profiles

Italian

In 2016, 75,556 students studied Italian in Victorian government schools. It was taught by 361 teachers in 19.6 percent of primary schools and 24.7 percent of secondary schools with Languages programs. Overall, Italian was offered in 277 schools - 207 primary schools, 11 primary/secondary schools and 59 secondary schools - as well as through ten VSL centres, including through distance education. In 2016, 255 students who graduated from secondary school had completed Italian study to Year 12 level (Unit 4). Table 1.3 provides student enrolments in Italian between 2010 and 2016.

Chinese (Mandarin)

In 2016, 72,716 students studied Chinese (Mandarin) in Victorian government schools. It was taught by 240 teachers in 21.2 percent of primary schools and 19.7 percent of secondary schools with Languages programs. Overall, Chinese (Mandarin) was offered in 279 schools - 219 primary schools, 13 primary/secondary schools and 47 secondary schools - as well as through 22 VSL centres, including through distance education. In 2016, 1,433 students who had graduated from secondary school had completed Chinese (Mandarin) study to Year 12 level (Unit 4). Table 1.4 provides student enrolments in Chinese (Mandarin) between 2010 and 2016.

Aboriginal Languages in Victorian Government Schools

Teaching Aboriginal Languages in Victoria is centred on language reclamation, revival and cultural studies. In recent years there has been a significant increase in the number of government schools offering an Aboriginal Languages program. In 2016, 1,253 students studied Aboriginal Languages in Victorian government schools.

Overall, Aboriginal Languages were offered in eight schools - five primary schools, two primary/secondary schools and one secondary school. Table 1.15 provides student enrolments in Aboriginal Languages between 2010 and 2016. In 2016, two students who graduated from secondary school had completed Aboriginal Languages study to Year 12 level (Unit 4).

Aboriginal languages taught included Wemba Wemba, Woiwurrung, Barkindji-Marawara, Yorta Yorta, Dhudhuroa, in conjunction with Murrinh-patha, and Gunditjmara languages.

2. Summary of Findings

Victorian Government Primary Schools

Schools

- One thousand and ninety one (1,091) government primary schools provided a Languages program in 2016, which constituted 91.1 percent of the total of 1,197 primary schools<sup>1</sup>. Not all schools with Languages programs offered the program across all year levels. Languages provision ranged from 87.4 percent of government primary schools at the Foundation level, to over 72 percent in Years 3 to 6 (Figure 3.1 and Table 3.1).
- Indonesian was the most widely-taught language in Victorian government schools at the primary level, with 248 or 22.7 percent of schools providing a primary Indonesian program, followed by Chinese (Mandarin) (231 schools, 21.2 percent), Italian (214 schools, 19.6 percent), Japanese (207 schools, 19.0 percent), French (83 schools, 7.6 percent) and Auslan (56 schools, 5.1 percent) (Table 3.2). Appendices 2 and 4 provide details of primary schools and the Languages programs offered in 2016.

Students

- A total of 285,660 students studied a language in government primary schools in 2016. This represented 81.5 percent of government primary school students. Languages study increased across all year levels, with over 90 percent of students studying a language at the Foundation and Year 1 levels, and over 75 percent of students studying a language at all other levels (Table 3.3 and Figure 3.4).

Languages taught

- Nineteen languages were offered in government primary schools in 2016, with primary students also studying 46 languages through the VSL. In total, 50 languages were studied at the primary level.
- The eight most-studied languages in 2016 were Chinese (Mandarin) (accounting for 20.4 percent of enrolments at the primary level), Italian (20.1 percent), Japanese (18.3 percent) Indonesian (18.1 percent), French (8.6 percent), Auslan (5.1 percent), Spanish (4.5 percent) and German (2.5 percent) (Table 3.4 and Figure 3.5).

Contact time

- The time spent by primary students on language learning varied considerably according to the type of program. Contact time ranged from 20 minutes to 300 minutes per week, with an average of 55.9 minutes per week (excluding Bilingual programs in which Languages programs were provided for between 450 and 900 minutes per week) (Figure 3.8).
- Excluding Bilingual programs, 0.9 percent of Languages programs consisted of 150 minutes or more of teaching per week, which is the recommended minimum time by DET (Figure 3.7).

Regional provision of Languages programs

- In 2016, ten or more languages were offered in each of the four regions, with Italian the most-studied language in the South-Western Victoria (SWV) and North-Western Victoria (NWV) regions, Chinese (Mandarin) the most-studied language in the North-Eastern Victoria (NEV) region, while Japanese was the most-studied language in the South-Eastern Victoria (SEV) region (Table 3.6).

<sup>1</sup> All Victorian government schools with primary and secondary enrolments except special schools and English language schools are included in this report. Multi-campus schools are regarded as one school. Schools providing both primary and secondary levels are included in both primary and secondary school analyses.

Victorian Government Secondary Schools

Schools

- In 2016, 279 or 88.3 percent of the 316 government secondary schools provided Languages programs at one or more year levels (Figure 1.4 and Table 4.1).
- Of the schools providing a Languages program, 41.2 percent provided a continuous language sequence from Year 7 to Year 12. The next highest percentage was for programs from Years 7 to 8, accounting for 16.1 percent of enrolments in Languages programs (Figure 4.2).
- Indonesian was the most widely-taught language in Victorian government schools at the secondary level, with 90 schools or 32.3 percent of schools providing a secondary Indonesian program, followed by Japanese (86 schools, 30.8 percent), French (85 schools, 30.8 percent), Italian (69 schools, 24.7 percent), Chinese (Mandarin) (55 schools, 19.7 percent), and German (49 schools, 17.6 percent) (Table 4.1). Appendices 3 and 5 provide details of secondary schools and the Languages programs offered in 2016.

Students

- A total of 92,425 students studied a language in government secondary schools 2016. This represented 41.3 percent of government secondary school students (Table 4.2 and Figure 4.4). A further 2,378 secondary school students studied an additional language (for example, through taster programs), bringing the total number of secondary school student enrolments to 94,803 (Table 4.3).
- Among the students who graduated from VCE in 2016, 17.8 percent had completed a language at the Year 12 level (Unit 4) (Table 4.5).

Languages taught

- Nineteen languages were offered in Victorian government secondary schools in 2016, with secondary students also studying 47 languages through the VSL. In total, 49 languages were studied at the secondary level.
- The six most-studied languages at the secondary level in 2016 were French (accounting for 21.2 percent of enrolments), Italian (18.6 percent), Japanese (17.6 percent), Indonesian (16.0 percent), Chinese (Mandarin) (11.9 percent) and German (10.2 percent) (Table 4.3 and Figure 4.5).

Languages study at the VCE level

- Among the students eligible to complete Year 12 in 2016, 4,524 or 17.8 percent of students completed a Languages study to VCE Unit 4 level during their schooling, including through the VSL and CLS (Table 4.5). In total, 40 languages were studied through to the VCE Unit 4 level, with the five most-studied languages at VCE level being Chinese (Mandarin), French, Japanese, German and Italian (Table 4.6).

Contact time

- The average weekly contact time for Languages programs was 146.3 minutes at Year 7, increasing to 233.3 minutes per week at Year 12 (Figure 4.7).
- In 2016, 81.6 percent of Year 7 Languages students, 84.4 percent of Year 8 Languages students and 90.4 percent of Year 9 Languages students were in programs that ran for 140 minutes or more per week. At Years 10, 11 and 12, 79.3 percent, 86.4 percent and 95.4 percent of Languages students respectively, studied a language for 200 minutes or more per week (Figure 4.7).

Regional provision of languages

- In 2016, Italian was the most-studied language in the SWV and NWV regions, while French was the most-studied language in the NEV and SEV regions (Table 4.7).

Teachers of Languages in Victorian Government Schools

- There were 1,836 qualified Languages teachers teaching in government primary and secondary schools in 2016.
- Teachers of Asian languages represented 49.0 percent of Languages teachers, European language teachers accounted for 47.3 percent of teachers, while the remaining 3.8 percent of Languages teachers taught Aboriginal languages, Arabic, Auslan, Hebrew, Persian, Tongan and Turkish.
- Teachers of Italian comprised the largest group of teachers of European languages at 19.7 percent of all teachers, while teachers of Japanese comprised the largest group of teachers of Asian languages at 17.8 percent of all teachers (Table 5.1).

Designated Bilingual Programs in Victorian Government Schools

- In 2016, one special school, one primary/secondary school and 11 primary schools offered designated bilingual programs where students are taught in or through the language for more than 450 minutes per week (Table 6.1).

The Victorian School of Languages (VSL)

- In 2016, 49 languages were provided across 40 VSL centres, in both metropolitan and regional areas, including through distance education. Appendix 6 provides a list of VSL centres and the languages offered at each centre in 2016.
- Of the 49 languages offered, 46 were studied at the primary level, and 47 were studied at the secondary level (Table 7.1). Students were provided with approximately three hours per week of instruction, mainly on Saturday mornings.
- In 2016, 17,382 students from government, Catholic and independent schools, as well as home-schooled students studied Languages through the VSL. Enrolments totalled 8,832 at the primary level and 8,550 at the secondary level. These figures include enrolments in distance education (Table 7.1 and Figure 7.1).
- Overall in 2016, government school students accounted for 69.0 percent of enrolments at the VSL, with students from Catholic and independent schools and home-schooled students accounting for the remaining 31.0 percent of enrolments (Figure 7.2).

VSL distance education

- In 2016 the VSL offered Arabic, Chinese (Mandarin), Classical Greek, French, German, Greek, Indonesian, Italian, Japanese, Latin and Spanish by distance education (Table 7.2).
- There were 1,765 students from all educational sectors enrolled in distance education Languages programs in 2016 (20.7 percent of all secondary level enrolments at the VSL).

Community Language Schools (CLS)

- CLS are conducted by incorporated, community-based, not-for-profit organisations accredited for funding purposes by DET. In 2016, 170 accredited community language schools were provided student per capita funding by DET to support the provision of out-of-school-hours language programs in 42 languages to 35,343 school-aged students (Table 8.1).

3. Detailed Findings: Victorian Government Primary Schools

Schools

In 2016, 1,091 government primary schools – 91.1 percent of all government primary schools, provided a Languages program (Figure 1.2). Table 3.1 and Figure 3.1 detail the number and percentage of primary schools providing languages programs by year level.

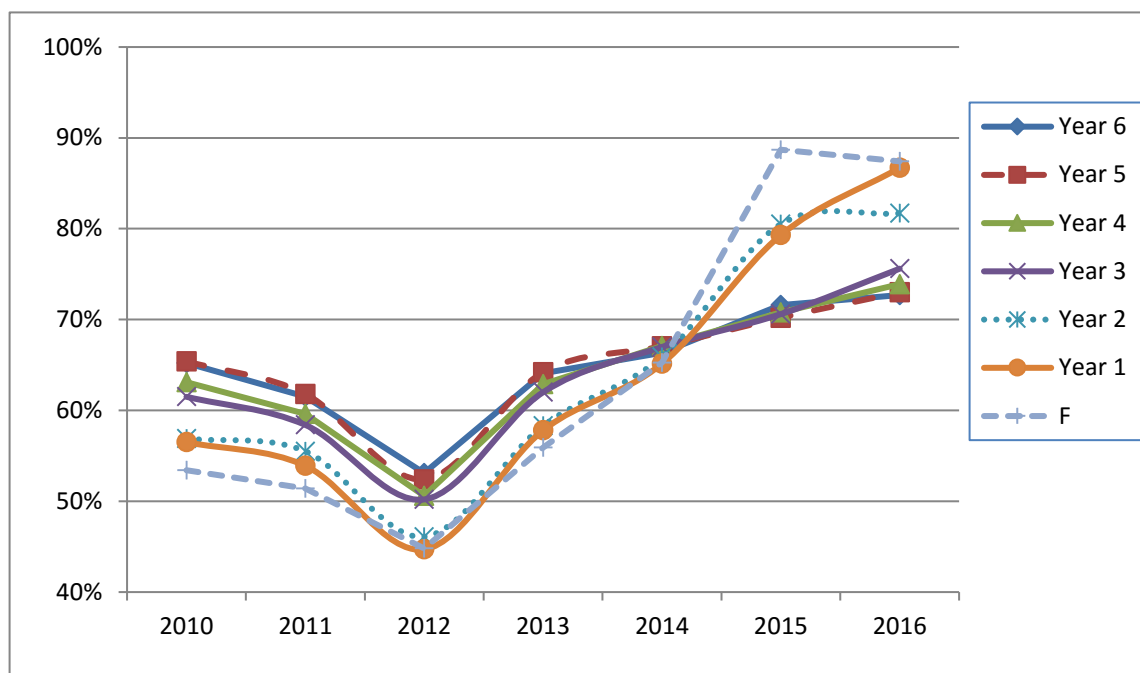

Figure 3.2 provides information on the sequencing of language programs, with 75.2 percent of schools providing languages education from Foundation to Year 6.

Nineteen languages were offered at the primary level in government schools in 2016, with the introduction of a Karen language program. Note that, Assyrian, Swedish and Thai, which were offered in 2015, were not offered in 2016.

Students

In 2016, 81.5 percent or 285,660 students studied a language at the primary level in government schools, representing a 4.5 percent increase from 2015 (see Figure 3.3 and Table 3.3). Figure 3.4 provides details of student enrolments in language programs by level, between 2010 and 2016.

Languages Taught

As noted above, nineteen languages were taught in government primary schools in 2016 (Table 3.4), with primary school students also studying 46 languages through the VSL. Overall, students at the primary level studied a total of 50 languages in mainstream schools and/or through the VSL in 2016. See Tables 1.1 and 3.4 for full details.

The eight most-studied languages at the primary level were Chinese (Mandarin), Italian, Japanese, Indonesian, French, Auslan, Spanish and German. These eight languages accounted for 97.5 percent of enrolments in government primary schools (see Table 3.4). The other languages studied in government primary schools, in order of highest to lowest enrolments, were Korean, Aboriginal languages, Greek, Vietnamese, Hindi, Turkish, Arabic, Macedonian, Tongan, Russian and Karen.

Contact Time

The amount of time primary students spent on Languages learning in 2016 ranged from 20 minutes to 300 minutes per week, with an average of 55.9 minutes per week (Figures 3.7 and 3.8). This data excludes students in Bilingual programs (See Table 6.1). Figure 3.8 provides the average contact time for Languages study per week between 2010 and 2016.

Regional Provision of Languages Programs

Figure 3.9 shows the percentage of primary schools providing a Languages program by region between 2013 and 2016, and Table 3.5 shows number and percentage of primary schools offering a Languages program in 2016, and the total number of primary schools in each region. Ten or more languages were offered in each of the regions, with 17 languages offered in the NWV region and 12 in the SWV region. Italian was the most-studied language in the SWV and NWV regions, Chinese (Mandarin) was the most-studied language in the NEV region, while Japanese was the most-studied language in the SEV region (Table 3.6).

4. Detailed findings: Victorian Government Secondary Schools

Schools

In 2016, 279 secondary schools, 88.3 percent, provided Languages programs. Figure 4.1 shows the percentage of secondary schools with Languages programs by year levels from 2010 to 2016.

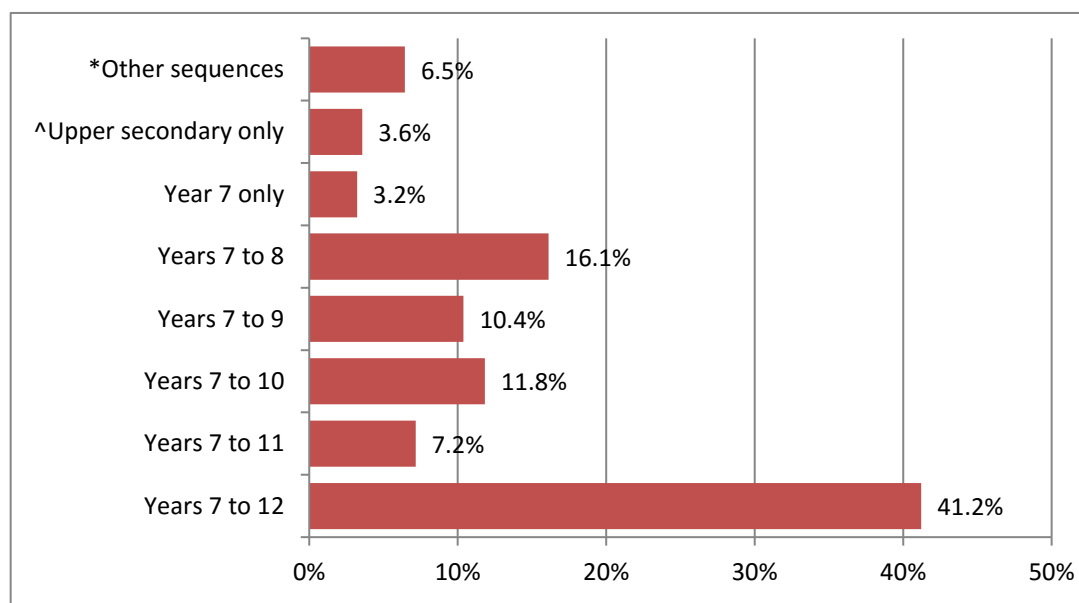

Of the secondary schools that offered Languages programs in 2016, 41.2 percent provided continuous programs from Years 7 to 12, enabling students the opportunity to study a language through to completion of school (Figure 4.2). A further 19.0 percent of schools offered Languages programs from Years 7 to 10 or Years 7 to 11.

*'Other sequences' refers to the provision of Languages programs at non-sequential year levels, or partial sequences.

Nineteen languages were taught in government secondary schools in 2016. While the number of schools offering Languages at the secondary level remained relatively stable, there was some variation in the number of Languages programs offered (see Table 4.1 for further details). However, overall student enrolments increased (see Table 4.2).

Students

In 2016, 41.3 percent or 92,425 students studied a language in government secondary schools (Table 4.2 and Figure 4.4). A further 2,378 enrolments represented students who studied more than one language through taster programs, bringing the total number of Languages enrolments to 94,803 (Table 4.3). Overall, the number of students studying a language increased between 2015 and 2016. See Table 4.2 and Figure 4.3 for further detail.

Note that in Figures 4.3, 4.4 and Table 4.2, students are only counted once (92,425 students). All other tables and figures in this section contain information on the number of enrolments in Languages programs (94,803 enrolments). Enrolment figures double count students who are studying more than one language through taster programs. Fifteen secondary schools offered taster courses in 2016, where, for example, students studied two languages for twenty weeks each per year.

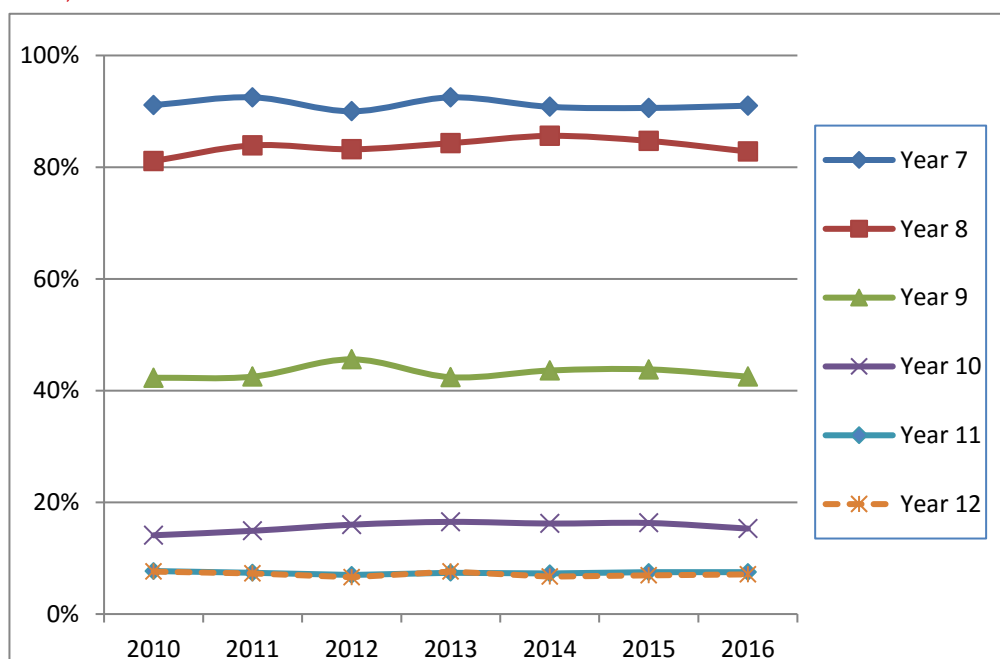

It is also important to note that the Year 12 enrolment figures in this section count students enrolled in Year 12 who are studying a language. However, a large number of students complete a Unit 4 Languages study before they are actually enrolled in Year 12. These students are not included in Year 12 figures in this section. The section, VCE Languages Study, explains this discrepancy and provides further details about the study of Languages through to the Year 12 (Unit 4) level amongst graduating students.

The total number of secondary students (2016 mid-year census, excluding students in special and English language schools and ungraded students) was 223,923.6 (equivalent full-time students).

Languages Taught

Nineteen languages were taught in secondary schools in 2016 (Table 4.3), with secondary school students also studying 47 languages through the VSL (of a total of 49 languages available at the VSL), including via distance education. Overall, students at secondary schools studied a total of 49 languages through schools and/or the VSL in 2016. See Tables 1.1 and 4.3 for details.

Languages study patterns differ at the primary and secondary level. However, of the eight most-studied languages at both levels, seven are the same: French, Italian, Japanese, Indonesian, Chinese (Mandarin), German and Spanish, with Greek rounding out the eight at the secondary level. These eight languages accounted for 97.6 percent of enrolments at the secondary level. The other languages studied, in order of enrolments, were Vietnamese, Auslan, Turkish, Arabic, Macedonian, Latin, Aboriginal Languages, Persian, Hebrew, Hindi and Korean.

Figure 4.5 provides a proportional representation of the languages studied at the secondary level. Figure 4.6 shows the secondary enrolments in the six most studied languages from 2010 to 2016.

Retention rates

Table 4.4 looks at retention rates of language students between Years 7 and 12. It includes the same cohort of students enrolled in Year 7 in 2011 and in Year 12 in 2016. At Year 7, Indonesian, Italian, Japanese and French were the most-studied languages, but at Year 12, proportional enrolments in Italian and Indonesian had decreased significantly. This trend was countered by a significant increase in proportional enrolments in Chinese (Mandarin), which is largely due to an increase in the number of students in Chinese (Mandarin) as a First Language programs at the senior secondary level (Table 4.4). An increase in the proportion of French enrolments is also observed, and Japanese enrolments remain consistent. While German and Greek had proportionately lower enrolments at Year 7, retention rates for these languages typically remain strong.

Table 4.4: Secondary enrolments as a percentage of all Languages enrolments, selected languages, Years 7 (2011) and 12 (2016)

VCE Languages Study

VCE (Years 11 & 12) enrolment figures in Tables 4.2 and 4.3 refer to students who are studying Languages at each year level. However, the flexible nature of the Victorian curriculum results in many students completing a Languages course before they enrol in Year 12. While Table 4.3 (above) indicates that 2,398 Year 12 students studied a language in 2016, it is important to note that nearly 2,000 Year 12 students had either already completed a Languages course or were continuing Languages study with the VSL or through a CLS.

Although Table 4.2 (above) indicates that 7.1 percent of students enrolled in Year 12 were completing Unit 4 in a Languages course, this figure rises considerably once we consider government secondary school students who completed a Languages course (Unit 4) at an earlier year level or outside of regular school classes through the VSL or through a CLS.

Among government school students who were eligible to graduate in 2016, 17.8 percent had completed a Languages course either through their school, through the VSL (including via distance education) or through a CLS. This data was provided by the VCAA. Table 4.5 lists the most-studied languages by students who graduated from VCE in 2016, as well as figures for previous years going back to 2010.

*An adjustment has been made to the overall enrolment figures when calculating the percentage of students studying a language. From 2016, the percentage of language students has been calculated against the number of 'students who graduated from VCE'. Prior to 2016, calculations were made on 'students eligible to graduate from VCE'.

Snapshot of students who graduated from VCE in 2016 (students from Victorian government schools) and the languages studied

Table 4.6 provides information about the students who graduated in 2016 having completed a Languages course during their senior secondary schooling, including students who finished a Languages course when enrolled in Year 10, Year 11 or Year 12. Overall, a majority of students (58.4 percent) completed Unit 4 of a Languages course when they were enrolled in Year 12. A further 38.5 percent of students completed Unit 4 of a Languages course when they were enrolled in Year 11, while the remaining 3.1 percent completed Unit 4 when they were enrolled in Year 10.

Contact Time

The average contact time for Languages programs varied at each year level and across schools (see Figure 4.7).

The time allocated to Languages study also varied from school to school. In 2016, 81.6 percent of Year 7 Languages students, 77.5 percent of Year 8 Languages students and 90.4 percent of Year 9 Languages students were in programs of 140 minutes or more per week. At Years 10, 11 and 12, 79.3 percent, 86.4 percent and 95.4 percent of students respectively, studied a language for 200 minutes or more per week.

Figure 4.7: Average minutes per week for Languages programs, by year level, 2010-16

Regional Provision of Languages

In 2016, nine or more languages were offered in all four Victorian regions. Italian was the most-studied language in the SWV and NWV regions, while French was the most-studied in the NEV region. Enrolments were more evenly distributed in the SEV region, with French, Japanese and Indonesian all widely studied (Table 4.7).

5. Teachers of Languages in Victorian Government Schools

In 2016, there were 1,836 qualified Languages teachers teaching in Victorian government schools. Among these Languages teachers, over 160 taught in more than one school. These teachers predominantly taught at two schools, but some teachers taught at up to 12 schools through the blended delivery of programs, and often both at the primary and secondary levels. Over 390 schools were serviced by teachers working at more than one school. In instances where teachers taught at more than one school, the majority of these schools were government schools, although many of these teachers also worked across multiple jurisdictions, particularly those working in regional and rural contexts. This included teaching in the VSL, in Catholic and independent schools, in schools in NSW (i.e. school communities along state borders) and in CLS.

Figure 5.1 provides data on the distribution of teachers across primary, secondary schools and schools covering both primary and secondary levels.

Table 5.1 lists the number of teachers per language, and also provides information on the qualification levels of Languages teachers in Victorian government schools. This includes qualified teachers with and without a Languages methodology. Overall, 83.0 percent of qualified teachers have a Languages methodology.

6. Designated Bilingual Programs in Victorian Government Schools

In 2016, one special school, one primary/secondary school and 11 primary schools offered designated bilingual programs (Table 6.1). Bilingual programs provide students with the opportunity to learn curriculum content in, and through, both English and another language. In addition to the language curriculum, content-based teaching is provided in two or more domains of the Discipline-based Learning Strand of the Victorian Curriculum. Schools may choose from Science, Mathematics, The Arts and The Humanities (see Table 6.1). Students are taught in or through the language for a minimum of 450 minutes per week. Additionally, other activities at these schools, such as library time, school assemblies, camps and excursions may also be conducted in the language.

Language teachers in the designated bilingual primary programs are highly qualified and are often supported by teacher aides, assistants or volunteers from the community.

Table 6.1: Designated bilingual programs, 2016

7. The Victorian School of Languages (VSL)

The VSL is a government school which provides out-of-school-hours programs for students from government and non-government schools who cannot access the language of their choice in their mainstream school. Programs are provided outside regular school hours, usually on Saturday mornings, and are typically of three hours' duration.

In 2016, the VSL offered 49 languages through its 40 centres in both metropolitan and regional areas, including through distance education. In total, 17,382 Foundation to Year 12 students were enrolled to study a language through the VSL in 2016 (including enrolments via distance education). Of these, 8,832 were primary students and 8,550 were secondary students. In 2016, Malay and Swahili were offered for the first time since 2006 and 2012 respectively (see Table 7.1).

Distance education continued to provide an important avenue for Languages study, with enrolments in distance education representing 20.7 percent of secondary VSL enrolments in 2016. All figures referring to the VSL in this section include enrolments through distance education. Further details on distance education are available in the Distance Education Provision at the Victorian School of Languages section. Figure 7.1 provides a comparison of all VSL enrolments from 2010 to 2016 at the primary and secondary levels.

Table 7.1 sets out the total VSL enrolments for each language by year level. Forty-four of the languages taught at the VSL were studied at both the primary and secondary levels, while Chinese (Cantonese) and Swahili were only studied at the primary level and Indonesian, Latin and Classical Greek were only studied at the secondary level. The six most widely-studied languages overall were Chinese (Mandarin), Vietnamese, Punjabi, Greek, Arabic and Japanese. Together, these six languages accounted for 48.9 percent of total enrolments at the VSL, with the remaining students spread over a wide range of languages.

Overall, as in the past, there were noticeable differences in patterns of enrolments between the primary and secondary levels across languages. Some community languages such as Greek, Punjabi, Sinhala and Malayalam, for example, had stronger enrolments at the primary level than at the secondary level, although most community languages had fairly even enrolments across both levels. By contrast, other languages such as Japanese, French, Indonesian, and German had a higher proportion of enrolments at the secondary level.

Figure 7.2 represents the proportions of primary and secondary students enrolled at the VSL who attended government and non-government schools.

Distance Education Provision at the Victorian School of Languages

In 2016, the VSL provided French, German, Italian, Japanese, Spanish, Indonesian, Chinese (Mandarin), Latin, Greek, Arabic, and Classical Greek by distance education to secondary students wishing to study a language which was not offered at their mainstream school, and to secondary students who were not currently attending a school. Of all secondary students enrolled at the VSL in 2016, 1,765 students, or 20.6 percent, were studying a language through distance education (Table 7.2). Figure 7.3 indicates in enrolments in the six most-studied languages through distance education between 2010 and 2016.

8. Community Language Schools (CLS)

CLS programs are administered by incorporated community-based, not-for-profit organisations, which are accredited for funding by the Department of Education and Training (DET).

CLS provide Languages education programs that are complementary to those provided by mainstream schools and the VSL. Community language schools provide programs to students from Foundation to Year 12 (depending on the language) outside mainstream school hours; i.e. after school or on weekends.

In 2016, 170 accredited CLS in Victoria offered Languages programs in 42 languages to 35,343 primary and secondary students (as funded by DET). Table 8.1 provides CLS enrolments at the primary and secondary level, by language.
