Source: HESG Training Activity Accredited Course Enrolments 2011-2014

The course/s seeks to develop skills and knowledge required in the public relations industry at the Diploma and Advanced Diploma levels, and currently is not covered by any Training Package. The course has been running successfully for more than 16 years, and was first offered in 1993 as an Associate Diploma and in 1999 as an Advanced Diploma after extensive review and industry feedback. The courses have continued to evolve to meet the needs of industry most recently by replacing the Certificate IV in Business (Public Relations) with the Diploma of Business (Public Relations) in 2009.

The qualifications remain well sought after, with 1000 enrolments in the period 2010 to 2013. Enrolments for the existing accreditation period have been strong between the two major providers, indicating the continuing demand for the course.

The key stakeholders have confirmed that research conducted into the industry need for people with public relations qualifications and experience, prior to and during the five years of the accreditation period of the existing course, remains accurate and current. The Australian Government Job Outlook website predicts very strong growth for job prospects in the public relations industry up to 2017.

During the recent research phase for the renewal of this course, the key stakeholders further stressed that the course continues to meet industry training needs however some updating such as the inclusion of social media to reflect its increasing use and influence in the public relations environment. They emphasised the importance of understanding social media and public relations in the context of the business environment. Further information on this research can be accessed from Graduate Careers Australia’s Careers in Corporate and Social Responsibility including graduate profiles.

The content of this course has been determined and endorsed by the Steering Committee comprising a majority of industry represents through a range of consultative processes including:

- group comprising a range of stakeholders including industry representatives and content experts
- research by project team
- working party of content experts

See:
Appendix 1 Course content developed by stakeholders

1.1.1 Training Demand/Job Search
1.1.2 Skills and knowledge mapping

After mapping the vocational outcomes against national training packages and accredited courses, it was found that there is no qualification that provides training in the vocational outcomes (Section B 2. above) required for effective performance within the public relations sector.

Anticipated employment opportunities include:

- Public Relations /Public Affairs
- Public Relations intern
- Senior Advisor – Public Relations
- Public Relations communications specialist
- Public Relations consultant
- Social Media and Public Relations officer
- Public Relations strategist

The job search analysis, and the associated knowledge and skills requirements, has been ratified by members of the Steering Committee and matched to the course structure.

Industry support is confirmed through the endorsement and active participation of the Steering Committee.

Members of the steering committee

Chair - Anna Henderson: Executive Director, Business Skills Viability

- Alain Grossbard FPRIA, President, Victorian Division, Public Relations Institute of Australia
- Anna Kirby, Managing Director, Rover Communications
- Katrina Jones, Public Relations consultant
- John Donovan, Managing Director, AFM Investment Partners
3.2. Review for re-accreditation

Standards 1 and 2 for Accredited Courses

Monitoring and evaluation of 22051VIC Diploma of Business (Public Relations) and 22038VIC Advanced Diploma of Business (Public Relations) has been conducted in accordance with Section B.9. Ongoing monitoring and evaluation, of the Course Documentation and ensuing feedback has been taken into account in the revised course. Surveys of industry, current and past students and providers were conducted as part of the mid-accreditation cycle review and confirmed the courses were meeting their intended outcome. The surveys further confirmed the impact of social media and technology in the industry and the need for its inclusion in the course.

Learners currently enrolled in the existing course may convert to: 22284VIC Diploma of Business (Public Relations) and 22283VIC Advanced Diploma of Business (Public Relations) which replace and are equivalent to 22051VIC Diploma of Business (Public Relations) and 22038VIC Advanced Diploma of Business (Public Relations).

Please refer to the following - 3.2.1: Transition Table - for transition arrangements.

<th>4.1. Qualification level</th>
<th>Standards 1, 2 and 3 AQTF Standards for Accredited Courses</th>
</tr>
</thead>

The 22284VIC Diploma of Business (Public Relations) is consistent with the Qualification Framework 2nd Edition January 2013 (AQF) specification for Diploma (Level 5) as follows:

- Knowledge: Graduates at this level will have technical and theoretical knowledge in a specific area or a broad field of work and learning and be able to demonstrate understanding of a broad knowledge base incorporating theoretical concepts, with substantial depth in some areas such as applying knowledge of public relations principles, practices, processes and strategies to develop a public relations campaign.

- Skills: Graduates at this level will have a broad range of cognitive, technical and communication skills to select and apply methods and technologies to:

  - analyse information to complete a range of activities to meet management requirements including current issues/trends which affect the public relations industry or plan strategies to manage reactive media across sensitive issues including the use of traditional and social media.

  - provide and transmit solutions to sometimes complex problems, for example, an analysis of consumer behaviour to target public relations to specific markets and specific needs, and to forecast future business needs.

  - transmit information and skills to others through creative and persuasive writing skills; using a range of statistical techniques to analyse market trends and developments, current public relations performance and comparative market information.

  - take limited responsibility for the achievement of group outcomes in organising others in public relations projects.

- Application of knowledge and skills: Graduates at this level will apply knowledge and skills to demonstrate autonomy, judgement and defined responsibility in known or changing contexts and within broad but established parameters such as:

  - developing and maintaining appropriate public relations strategies for utilising social media in public relations campaigns.

  - applying and developing an understanding of public relations in the context of a business environment.
including a risk management approach to project management.

- Volume of Learning: The Diploma of Business (Public Relations) incorporates structured and unstructured learning.
- Structured learning activities develop the knowledge and skills to operate as a Public Relations professional with well-developed PR writing and presentation skills for appropriate markets using technology and social media.
- Unstructured learning activities are an integral part of the total training and include research, managing a variety of projects, self-directed learning activities and work experience to support course completion.
- The volume of learning will be in the range of 1 to 2 years.

The 22283VIC Advanced Diploma of Business (Public Relations) is consistent with the Qualification Framework 2nd Edition January 2013 (AQF) specification for Advanced Diploma (Level 6) as follows:

- Knowledge: Graduates of an Advanced Diploma will have specialised and integrated technical and theoretical knowledge with depth within one or more fields of work and learning through a demonstrated understanding of public relations campaigns, communication strategies, project management, public relations practices, ethics, corporate social responsibility and governance. They will develop an in-depth understanding of the public relations industry in a business context and develop an understanding of client relationships and business networks.
- Skills: Graduates at this level will have a broad range of cognitive, technical and communication skills to select and apply methods and technologies to:
  - analyse information across a range of technical or management functions covering social media, strategy and planning and initiation of alternative approaches to skills or knowledge applications such as fund raising campaigns or government lobbying
  - interpret and transmit solutions to unpredictable and sometimes complex problems through the analysis of information and concepts at an abstract level in the application of design principles and theories of communications different markets
  - transmit information and skills to others, for example in relation to broad quantity and quality in team participation including teams concerned with planning and evaluating the effectiveness of public relations campaigns

- demonstrate a command of wide-ranging, highly specialised technical, creative or conceptual skills in the design and development of user interfaces which form part of interactive media products based on visual communication principles
- demonstrate accountability for personal outputs within broad parameters in participating in the development of fundraising or sponsorship campaign activities according to their responsibilities and according to the project brief
- demonstrate accountability for personal and group outcomes within broad parameters in developing and coordinating the production of communications materials and corporate communication activities

- Application of knowledge and skills: Graduates at this level will apply knowledge and skills to demonstrate autonomy, judgement and defined responsibility:
  - in contexts that are subject to change for example during the management of complex PR campaigns and multiple projects requiring a strategic planning and risk management approach.
  - within broad parameters to provide specialist advice and functions such as persuasive writing and design skills, applying concepts of communications to the use of traditional and social media and applying public relations theories and principles to achieve successful outcomes for clients.

- Volume of Learning: The Advanced Diploma of Business (Public Relations) incorporates structured and unstructured learning.

- Structured learning activities develop the knowledge and skills to operate as a Public Relations professional with the ability to undertake research, manage complex public relations campaigns, devise appropriate social media strategies, and build successful client relationships and business networks.

- Unstructured learning activities are an integral part of the total training and include research, managing a variety of projects, self-directed learning activities and work experience to support course completion.

- The volume of learning will be in the range of 1.5 to 2 years.

7.1. Delivery modes

Standard 11 AQTF Standards for Accredited Courses

Delivery of units of competency from the relevant Training Packages must be consistent with the guidelines of the relevant Training Package.

Delivery of units of competency imported from Training Packages should be contextualised to the public relations industry sector, whilst ensuring that the delivery guidelines are adhered to. The following rules apply for contextualisation:

- elements and associated performance criteria must not be altered in any way
- the range statement may be expanded as long as it does not increase the complexity of the unit
- the evidence guide may be expanded as long as it retains the integrity of the unit and does not jeopardise the student’s potential to achieve the competency
- learning and assessment resources may be tailored to the specific needs of the target group, while maintaining their validity.

Delivery of units of competency will take into consideration the individual needs of students and will involve blended delivery mode including:

- workshops
- individual assignments
- team-based assignments
- use of case studies
- applied learning in the workplace or simulated public relations environment
- multi-media presentations and classroom instruction

- industry guest speakers
- group discussion
- work placement

Learners may be supported through: on-line (internet, social media, email and telephony); face-to-face conferencing, mentoring and interviews; ad hoc arrangements, and regular progress monitoring, particularly for practical work.

The course may be delivered part-time or full-time.

There is no mandatory workplace delivery.

7.2. Resources

Standard 12 AQTF Standards for Accredited Courses

Resources include:

- teachers/trainers who meet the Australian Quality Training Framework Essential Conditions and Standards for Initial/Continuing Registration Standard 1.4.

See AQTF User guides to the Essential Conditions and Standards for Initial/Continuing Registration or SNR 4.4 (Part2) and SNR 15.2 (Part 3) of the Standards for NVR Registered Training Organisations 2012:

- access to computers and internet
- access to workplace or simulated public relations environment

Please note: It is possible that over the five year accreditation period of this document, some legislation may become superseded. Teachers are encouraged to check the currency of legislation cited in this course at:

8. Pathways and articulation

Standard 8 AQTF Standards for Accredited Courses

This qualification includes nationally endorsed units of competency from the BSB07 Business Services and FNS10 Financial Services Training Packages. Participants who successfully complete any of these units will, upon enrolment, gain credit into other qualifications that require those same units.

Likewise, those participants who have successfully completed any of these units of competency from the Training Package will, upon enrolment into the Diploma of Business (Public Relations) and the Advanced Diploma of Business (Public Relations), gain credit for those same units.

There are no formal articulation arrangements at present.
